WILL NOT MOVE SAN FRANCISCO MERCHANTS TO BUILD ON OLD SITE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—Every organized mass of business men in this city has adopted and is enforcing a policy that includes the retention of every commercial asset possessed prior to the fire. The individual members have been called to strict account as to their intentions by the associations with which they are identified, and the committees on revival of wholesale and retail trade have been given the right of way over many other committees that would at first glance seem to be of more importance.

Oakland's Ambition

In the meanwhile at least a portion of the Oakland press and public is preparing to retain everything that can be held on the east shore of the bay, evidently content in the axiom that possession in nine points of the law. An optimistic editorial a few days ago advised the commuters that, having been advanced unexpectedly to the privileges of the second city in the State, there was no reason why Oakland should not be the first. The landlords and real estate dealers were warned that they were driving away golden opportunity by any tendency to increase property values of rentals.
San Francisco Business Men Alarmed
The San Francisco wholesale dealers have been offered advantageous locations across the bay, and much to the alarm of the Committees on Retention of Trade, have accorded these advantages extensive consideration. To-day the real estate men have taken up the subject and are preparing to oudo Oakland in the offer of sites for the temporary buildings in which they must recommence business.

A Sharp Contest

While San Francisco lies sorely stricken and almost helpless, Oakland is thrifily laying plans to increase and multiply through absorption of interests that this side of the bay cannot well afford to lose at this critical time. In consequence, there has been more or less feeling displayed over issues that would never have been raised had not both communities rallied immediately after the disaster and proceeded to engage in comprehensive plans for the future.

Oakland's Opportunity

Nearest and dearest to San Francisco, Oakland has risen to her opportunities in magnificent fashion.

Frank Mounce, has been jailed in Sacramento on a charge of enticing young girls to go to Manhattan for illicit purposes.

Manhattan raised $2,000 in coin in one hour for San Francisco's stricken people.

A group of copper mines in Harmony Canyon, five miles from Winnemucca have been bonded to an eastern company.

She has practiced the charity that beginneth at home, and by caring for thousands of the hungry and homeless she has laid upon her larger neighbor a debt that can never be repaid. As a city Oakland has earned a noble distinction that can be effected by no belting act of any class or faction of her population.

Hastening to Resume

Before the fire was extinguished and while it seemed that no building in San Francisco would escape the flames, hundreds of business men hurried across the bay to secure temporary offices as an accommodation to patrons, customers or clients with whom they desired the earliest possible conferences or settlements. Many large interests were represented in this rush to a locality unthreatened by fire, and if any of them, were compelled to devote and great length of time to search for offices. They were inclined to take the first that offered, and they found Oakland landlords generous and accommodating.

Absolute Order Prevails

Absolute order still prevails in San Francisco. The great city which but a brief time since was known the world over as the "second Paris," so wide was its reputation for gaiety and pleasure-seeking, has settled into the quietest of communities, in which the population is not seen abroad after the first hour of darkness. While the most rigid patrol system is maintained everywhere, the people are free to come and go as they please. But as there are no more places of recreation to attract them, few venture abroad at night.

Sightseers Add to Trouble

The influx of sightseers is adding to the troubles of the authorities and to the discomfort of those still residing in San Francisco. Thousands of these people crowd the ferryboats block the few open streets with all sorts of useless vehicles, and seriously interfere with those engaged in relief work. Today they added to the terrific jam at the main ferry depot and choked the narrow passages cleared in a few streets for the passage of vehicles. They overran ruins of buildings wherever safety would permit, and were absolutely ruthless in their frantic efforts to seize upon some article of historic and intrinsic value and cart it away.

The New York Evening Mail and Express estimates over eighty millions has been invested in Nevada mines by capitalists of that city.

Water has been found at a depth of fifty feet in the desert part of Churchill county.

The concentrating plant of the Nevada Con. Company, operating in White Pine county, will have a daily capacity of 3,000 tons.
